

WOMAN'S DRIVE

Charles A. Lewis Married After Overcoming Many Difficulties.

He Claims the Girl's Uncle Chloroformed and Abducted Her.

A TRIP TO THE FOUR COURTS BEFORE THE LICENSE WAS ISSUED.

Miss Lily Buel's Mother Claimed Lewis Had Stolen the Girl From Home and Ordered Their Arrest, But Afterward Consented to Their Marriage—The Groom Intimates That the Bride Has Money and That This Fact Has Influenced Her Relatives—An Interesting Case, in Which True Love Triumphed.

A little after 9 o'clock this morning two young men called at Recorder Hobbs' office, and one of them requested that a marriage license be issued to him and a young lady who he stated was too sick to come to the office. The young man gave his name as Charles A. Lewis, aged 24, and his address 414 1/2 street. The lady's name he said was Lily F. Buel, and her age, he said, was 18. The young man with him was his brother, George Lewis, who keeps a saloon at 12 North Seventh street, the old Daly stand. They said the young lady was at this place.

Samuel De Jong, draughtsman in Recorder Hobbs' office, who is acting as marriage license clerk, consented to go up to where the young woman was and issue the license. The prospective groom who was addressed by his brother as "Gus" stated that the parents of his intended were dead and that an uncle was her guardian, and refused to give his consent. She had been kept locked up he said for four days without anything to eat, and he had just gotten her out. He said he would go and find a minister and meet De Jong and his brother at the house. He accordingly departed and De Jong and the brother left the court-house, proceeding to the premises No. 12 North Seventh street, which they entered from the rear by way of the alley, Lewis acting as guide.

THEIR PLANS FAILED. Entering by the back door and ascending a flight of stairs a hall was reached, in which they stopped. After they had waited a few minutes Lewis became impatient, and the brother, who had arrived and started in search of him, going out the back way and leaving De Jong alone in the hall. A short time after he had gone, "Gus" arrived alone. He knocked at the door of a room marked "No. 6." A female voice answered the learning who was there, the speaker said she would try to get up. Lewis then went into an adjoining room. In a short time the door of the room marked "No. 6" was opened, and a woman came out. She was shown up the stairs and into a room marked No. 4.

In a short time another actor arrived on the scene in the person of Police Sergeant McNamee, who came in by the back way. De Jong, who had been waiting outside, called him, and asked him what he was doing there. De Jong replied that he had come to issue a license provided that all was right.

"It is not all right," replied the sergeant, when De Jong said "this wedding license won't be issued." "Where is the girl?" asked the sergeant, and De Jong told him she was in room No. 4. Gus Lewis, who had heard the voices, came out and saluted the sergeant, and they both approached the door of the room. As they did so the form of the girl was seen lying on the bed.

At this juncture George Lewis, the proprietor of the place, returned and Gus appeared at the door. He was told that "it's all up." We were not quite enough. The chief wants us.

All right, said George, "ring for a cab," which was done, and the party entering it, proceeded to the Four Courts.

At the Four Courts they met Mrs. Caroline George, who had been waiting outside. She then proceeded to the court-house, where a license was procured, and then they went to the church at Eighth and Walnut streets, where the marriage ceremony was performed.

It was Mrs. George who had requested the arrest of her daughter and Lewis. She claimed the girl had been enticed away from home by the young man, whom she said had kept her from her family several days. At the four courts the girl's name was entered up as Lily Buel.

Mrs. George Lewis, the brother of Mr. Charles A. Lewis, who resides at 12 North Seventh street, said that he had known Miss Buel for a year, and they were both anxious to be married. He said that his brother had formed an unjust estimate of him and objected to the marriage, and that he had been enticed away from home by the young man, whom she said had kept her from her family several days.

Mr. Charles A. Lewis told the following experiences of himself and his wife. He said that he had been enticed away from home by the young man, whom she said had kept her from her family several days. At the four courts the girl's name was entered up as Lily Buel.

DR. MARKS BLACKBALLED.

A Personal Difference Leads to This Action by the Hospital Alumni Society.

At last night's meeting of the Hospital Alumni Medical Society, held in the Medical Society assembly rooms, the name of Dr. Helme Marks, Superintendent of the City Hospital, proposed for membership by Dr. H. C. Dalton, his predecessor, was blackballed. This refusal to accept the Hospital Superintendent into membership of the Hospital Alumni Society seems to be the outcome of personal differences that have arisen between Dr. Marks and a former assistant physician of the hospital. Dr. Marks was seen to-day by a Post-Dispatch reporter and said:

"I am not surprised at this action, in fact I expected it. I told Dr. Lewis yesterday in discussing the matter that if I felt sure I would be black-balled. The opposition to me in the Hospital Alumni Society originated with Dr. Nowlin, whom I recently discharged from his position as assistant at the hospital, and it was through him I was blackballed. I do not know if I am a member of the St. Louis Medical Society and my standing is too well assured to be affected by an action of personal disapproval and personal antagonism."

Two Boys Loose Their Lives In An Old Ice Chest.

LANSING, Mich., Aug. 12.—Earl Price and Arthur Kurtz, both of North Lansing, met with a horrible death yesterday afternoon. The boys, both of whom were about 18 years of age, were playmates. The boys were missed late in the afternoon, and a large crowd of neighbors searched for them all night.

Shot by a Burglar.

Rudolph Oberman, a truck farmer, was shot and dangerously wounded by a thief who had entered his house about 2 o'clock this morning. Oberman resides at No. 474 Neosho street and is a well-known vegetable grower. Dr. M. C. Starkloff, who dressed the wound, says Oberman's story is as follows: On arriving at the above house he found his trousers on the floor and $7 in cash gone from the pocket.

As he started for the door he heard a noise at the back of his house, and when he went as he got to the window, which was open, a man pointed a pistol to his head and fired the bullet into the right cheek near the jaw-bone. Neighbors heard the shot but before they could come to the rescue the robber had disappeared.

Dr. Oberman describes the fellow as a man 5 feet 7 or 8 inches tall, slim in build and wore black clothes and a black handkerchief tied over his face concealing his features.

Dr. Starkloff said the wound was a dangerous one. The bullet broke the lower and upper jaw bones and came out a little below the ear. The bullet entered the right cheek near the jaw-bone. Neighbors heard the shot but before they could come to the rescue the robber had disappeared.

At this juncture George Lewis, the proprietor of the place, returned and Gus appeared at the door. He was told that "it's all up." We were not quite enough. The chief wants us.

"I AM NOT GUILTY."

Lizzie Borden's Answer in Court to the Charge of Murder.

THE FALL RIVER MYSTERY SEEMS TO BE NEARING SOLUTION.

All the Facts in Possession of the Police Not Yet Disclosed—Bridget Sullivan's Story Caused the Arrest of the Daughter of the Murdered Banker—How the Prisoner Looks.

FALL RIVER, Aug. 12.—As predicted in yesterday's dispatches Lizzie Borden was last night formally arrested and charged with the murder of her father, Andrew J. Borden, and her stepmother, Abby Borden, which occurred on Aug. 4, and the young woman passed the night in prison. This morning she was arraigned in the Second District Court before Judge Blaisdell. The court-room was crowded to suffocation by the hundreds of friends and relatives who were very few in number. Mr. Morse, Bridget Sullivan and Miss Emma Borden were present.

Miss Borden, the prisoner, was represented by Andrew J. Jennings. Miss Borden was dressed in a dark blue tailor-made gown and wore a black hat with a few white feathers. She looked in much better condition than she was in last night just before her arrest.

She entered the court-room leaning on Missionary Buck's arm. She was somewhat friendly and did not show feeling by either tears or trembling.

When placed at the bar she glanced quietly about the room, and in answer to the Judge's question, after the charge against her was read, "Are you guilty or not guilty," she answered in a voice which betrayed no emotion.

"I am not guilty."

Miss Borden's counsel moved for a new trial at once. District Attorney Knowlton asked for a continuance until Monday, Aug. 22, and it was granted. Mr. Morse and Bridget Sullivan were held as witnesses in the case.

While many witnesses were examined at the inquests over the butchering of Mr. and Mrs. Borden and many important facts were elicited, the police department, by means of a statement of Bridget Sullivan, the honest servant of the Borden family, the only person who saw the daughter, Lizzie Borden, upon the charge of having committed the crime.

The mysterious police had secured evidence last Friday which seemed to warrant them in the arrest of the daughter, Lizzie Borden. There was no one here who would assume the responsibility. The mayor of the city, who is available in case of emergency, refused to sanction an arrest, and Marshal Hill and the police department.

Attorney-General Pillsbury therefore came to the city conference, after conference was held between the police department, the District Attorney, the Mayor, City Marshal and subordinates.

District Attorney Knowlton had taken the responsibility before the arrival of the Attorney-General to order a chamber inquiry. He said that the police department had taken the responsibility before the arrival of the Attorney-General to order a chamber inquiry.

In capital cases in Massachusetts inquests are judicial inquiries. They are not a coroner. This inquest, like all such, was secret. A policeman guarded the entrance to the court-house and no one was allowed to enter. The inquest was held in the court-room on the second floor of the Central Police Station.

POETRY IN A CRANK.

He Spends His Time in Making Imaginary Ocean Trips.

From the New York Tribune.

A newspaper man, who frequently has gone to the docks of the big Atlantic steamers, has noticed an old man, who seemed to have little to do, for he was always to be observed standing around waiting, incoming and outgoing steamers with some kind of a list in his hand, and a small appearance. He had a carefully trimmed white mustache, a placid face and a dark and full dress of dark cloth, and he was a regular threadbare, but they gave one the impression that the wearer of them was a man of taste who would have been the means to gratify it.

One morning the newspaper man, awaiting the arrival of a man "from over the sea," reached the pier early in the day, and saw the old man standing there, waiting for a steamer. He had a small appearance, but they gave one the impression that the wearer of them was a man of taste who would have been the means to gratify it.
